Colorado's repair kit for a transfer that has gone slightly wrong. Six pre-printed statements with a blank after each, a free Statement box above them, and a line reading No Fraud Intended sitting between the last statement and the signature. Two of the six are written for a seller: the one that corrects the spelling of a name on the assignment of title, and the one that says the seller signed in the buyer's area by mistake.

This sheet is not the form. Download the blank DR 2444 from the Colorado Department of Revenue, Division of Motor Vehicles at https://dmv.colorado.gov/sites/dmv/files/documents/DR%202444_e_wo.pdf — always take the current revision from the agency rather than a copy. Print this and keep it beside you while you complete theirs.

Every line, in the order you meet it

1	YOU	Name	Whoever is swearing to the statement, printed on the top rule. Watch out: If two owners both need to say the same thing, that is two forms. There is one signature line at the foot and no room for a second.
2	YOU	The vehicle, and the title number	Vehicle identification number on its own rule, then year, make and the title number from the face of the certificate. Watch out: The title number is what ties this to one specific document. Leave it out and the statement floats free of the packet it is meant to be explaining.
3	YOU	Tick the statement that fits	Six printed options. A seller normally wants the misspelling line or the one about signing in the buyer's area in error. Watch out: Tick one. Two ticks makes a single sworn statement say two different things about one transfer, and the clerk cannot tell which one to act on.
4	YOU	Fill the blank after it	The correct spelling, the actual purchase date and price, the name being added - whatever the statement you ticked is waiting for. Watch out: The sixth statement is the exception: it is a complete sentence with nothing to add. Everything else needs a value or it says nothing.
5	YOU	The Statement box, if you need it	The deep free-text box near the top, for a situation none of the six printed lines describes. Watch out: Be dull and specific. A clerk is trying to reconcile two documents, so a sentence naming what is on each of them beats an apology.
6	YOU	Sign and date	One signature and a date in MM/DD/YY, under the certification. Watch out: Read the line above it. This is sworn under penalty of perjury in the second degree, which is what makes it acceptable to the county in the first place.

What gets this one rejected

- Using it to fix the odometer reading. An alteration in the odometer block voids the certificate, and a statement of fact cannot revive it - the route out is a duplicate title.
- A tick with an empty blank after it. Five of the six statements are sentences waiting for a value and are meaningless without one.
- Signed by somebody other than the person the statement is about. The name at the top and the signature at the foot are the same person.
- No title number. The form ties itself to a certificate, and a statement about an unidentified document is not evidence of anything.
- Several unrelated corrections on one sheet. The county reads it as one sworn statement, so a second problem gets a second form.
- Used to reduce a price after the fact. The purchase date and price line records what actually happened, and the certification above the signature is the same perjury clause as everywhere else.

☐ Amber is what you write ☐ Grey is a block somebody else completes The filled-in example is at the start of this sheet.
