Connecticut sells registrations three years at a time, which means a car sold eighteen months in has real money sitting on it. This is the form that gets some of it back. It is one sheet with four boxes and two ticks, it costs nothing to file, and it has a deadline that catches people out: the application has to be in before the registration period would have expired, not before some period after the sale.

This sheet is not the form. Download the blank F-82 from the Connecticut Department of Motor Vehicles at <https://portal.ct.gov/-/media/DMV/20/29/F-82.pdf> — always take the current revision from the agency rather than a copy. Print this and keep it beside you while you complete theirs.

Every line, in the order you meet it

1	YOU	Name	The registered owner's name, last name first, as the department holds it. Watch out: The refund follows the registration record rather than the person filing, so a name that does not match the record is a returned application.
2	YOU	Registration (Plate) Number	The plate the registration was issued against. Watch out: If you already cancelled online, this is the number printed on your plate disposition receipt. Copy it from there rather than from memory.
3	YOU	Is vehicle leased?	YES or NO. On an owned car it is NO. Watch out: On a lease the registration fee was paid by the leasing company, and the refund follows the money rather than the driver.
4	YOU	Registration Status, and the signature underneath it	Either the registration has already been cancelled, or you are authorising the DMV to cancel it as part of processing this refund. One signature and a date go on the printed rules below. Watch out: Pick one tick. Both, or neither, is the commonest reason this sheet comes back - and the second option is genuinely useful if you have not cancelled yet, because it saves a separate transaction. Then date it and post it well inside the registration period, because the deadline is the expiry date printed on the registration rather than a number of days after the sale.

What gets this one rejected

- An application filed after the registration period ended. The instruction is explicit - all refund applications must be submitted prior to the expiration of the registration period - and there is no discretion in it.
- A registration with less than a year left. Section 14-49(z) starts at one year remaining on a triennial registration; below that there is nothing to refund.
- A request for the fees around the registration. The form says what it covers: the refund is only for the registration fee. The plate fee, the administrative fee, the Clean Air Act fee and the Passport to the Parks fee do not come back.
- Wanting the cheque sent somewhere new without filing a change of address. The refund is mailed to the address of record, and moving it needs an official B-58 Change of Address/Voter Registration form enclosed.
- Filing it on a leased vehicle you were only the lessee of. Answer the leased question honestly; the fee was not yours.

☒ Amber is what you write ☐ Grey is a block somebody else completes The filled-in example is at the start of this sheet.
