One sheet that does two entirely different jobs, and the tick at the top decides which. Ticked as a Replacement Title it gets you a fresh certificate for $25 and about twenty business days. Ticked as an Ownership Transfer it becomes the paperwork that lets you sell a car whose title you cannot find - and in that mode the department will reject it outright unless a Q-1 is stapled to it.

This sheet is not the form. Download the blank H-6B from the Connecticut Department of Motor Vehicles at <https://portal.ct.gov/-/media/DMV/20/29/H6Bpdf.pdf> — always take the current revision from the agency rather than a copy. Print this and keep it beside you while you complete theirs.

Every line, in the order you meet it

1	YOU	Reason for Application	Ownership Transfer or Replacement Title. One tick, and it decides what this sheet is. Watch out: Ownership Transfer is the one for a sale, and the form's own bracket says it: must include a Q-1 form. Get this tick wrong and the application is rejected and returned.
2	YOU	If requesting a replacement title	Lost, Stolen, Mutilated or Destroyed. Ticked in addition to the reason above. Watch out: Mutilated means the certificate exists but is damaged, and the department wants it attached. Destroyed means it does not exist any more.
3	YOU	Name(s) of owner(s) as on title, and address	The names exactly as the certificate carried them - which means as the department holds them, not as you write them now. Watch out: If the name has changed since the title was issued, that is a separate correction and it happens before this application rather than inside it.
4	YOU	Owner's birth date and licence number	Two identifying boxes, with an optional phone and e-mail beside them. Watch out: Fill the optional ones in anyway. This is a postal transaction with a ninety-day tail on it, and a telephone number is the difference between a query and a rejection.
5	YOU	Title number, plate number, VIN, make and year	Five vehicle boxes. The title number is marked if available; the rest are not. Watch out: The title number is on the old registration certificate as well as on the missing title - the department notes on the face of each registration that a certificate has been issued.
6	YOU	Lienholder on title	The lender printed on the certificate, if there was one, with the reminder to submit a release letter. Watch out: Leave it blank only if the face of the certificate was genuinely clear. A lien you have forgotten about is still on the department's record, and this is where it surfaces.
7	YOU	Section 2, lien status - and Section 3 underneath it	A YES/NO answer on whether all liens have been satisfied, used in place of a release letter where the loan is more than a decade old. Below it, Section 3 takes a printed name, a signature and a date on printed rules. Watch out: Section 2 is not a general-purpose substitute - under ten years and the department wants the lender's letter on the lender's paper. And read Section 3's certification before signing it: no notary and no witness, but it reaches your own liability to anybody with a legal interest in the vehicle.

What gets this one rejected

- An ownership transfer with no Q-1. The form says what happens in its own instructions: if the Q-1 form is NOT submitted, your application will be rejected and returned to you.
- A strikeover or an erasure. Instruction one is that you print in ink or type, and that strikeovers or erasures are not acceptable.
- An owner applying where a lien is still outstanding. The rule at the top of the sheet is that the lienholder shall apply for a replacement certificate of title with a power of attorney - and the department takes that route by mail only.
- A lien release for a loan less than ten years old answered in Section 2 instead. Section 2 is available only where the loan origination date is more than ten years back.
- A cheque for the wrong amount. It is $25 and the form prints it twice.
- A mutilated-title tick with nothing attached. The box says Please Attach.
