How to fill out HSMV 82260 — Lien Satisfaction

Florida · written against HSMV 82260 (Rev 07/11), issued under section 319.24(5)(b), Florida Statutes

</forms/florida/hsmv-82260-lien-satisfaction/>

The lender's own declaration that the loan is gone. In Florida this is not a formality you can work around: FLHSMV states that a vehicle cannot legally be sold in a private sale while a lien exists, and that the title can only be transferred once the lienholder has reported the satisfaction to the department. This is that report, and nobody but the lienholder can sign it.

This sheet is not the form. Download the blank HSMV 82260 from the Florida Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles at <https://www.flhsmv.gov/pdf/forms/82260.pdf> — always take the current revision from the agency rather than a copy. Print this and keep it beside you while you complete theirs.

Every line, in the order you meet it

1	LENDER	Title number and vehicle description	Title number, VIN, year, make, body type and colour, in the block at the head of the form. Watch out: Check what the lender writes against your certificate before it is posted. A lien release that describes a different vehicle is a fortnight lost and a second request to a department that has no reason to hurry.
2	LENDER	Registered owner and date of issue	Your name last-name-first, the date the current certificate was issued, and your address. Watch out: Last name first is printed on the form and ignored more often than not. It matters because the department matches this against a record that is filed the same way.
3	LENDER	First lienholder: date of lien	The date the lien was recorded, in month-day-year. Watch out: The note at the foot of the form is unusually specific: the date of lien must be the same as that shown on the title certificate. Not the date of the loan agreement, not the date of the first payment - the date on the title.
4	LENDER	Lien satisfaction date	The day the loan was cleared. Watch out: This is the date the ten-day clock runs from. The form's own footnote gives the lienholder ten days after final payment to get this to the department for a motor vehicle, and thirty for a vessel.
5	LENDER	Lienholder name and address	The institution that held the lien, with its street address, city, state and zip. Watch out: If your loan was sold on, this is whoever holds it now rather than whoever you signed with. Chasing the original lender is how a private sale ends up waiting a month for a piece of paper the wrong company cannot issue.
6	LENDER	First lienholder name, again, at the foot	The certification block repeats the lienholder's name above the signature. Watch out: It is not a duplicate for the sake of it - the block above describes the lien, and this one is the statement acknowledging satisfaction of it. Both have to be filled in.
7	LENDER	Printed title of the authorised agent, and the signature	The job title of the person signing for the lender, and their signature on the rule underneath it. Watch out: The form asks for the agent's title in print, which a busy loan officer often skips. It is the line that tells the department the signature belongs to somebody with authority to release a lien rather than to whoever was at the desk.

What gets this one rejected

- Filling it in yourself. The certification is a statement by the holder of the lien, made under penalties of perjury, and your signature has no place on it.
- A lien date that does not match the title. The note at the foot is explicit that the date of lien must be the same as that shown on the title certificate.
- A perforated or paid-stamped form where one lender holds both liens. The note says not to perforate or use a paid stamp in that case, and to complete only the space for the lien actually being satisfied.
- A half-completed form. The lienholder must complete all applicable sections, including the description of the vehicle, the owner's name and address, and the lienholder's name and address.
- Waiting for it after you have agreed a sale. It is due from the lienholder within ten days after final payment for a motor vehicle - thirty for a vessel - and ten days is the deadline, not the turnaround.
