The most misunderstood form in the Indiana set. It is not a way of selling a car without a title, and the BMV says so in a single sentence: a bill of sale cannot be used to transfer vehicle ownership for a vehicle that requires a certificate of title by law. What it does do is prove ownership of the handful of things Indiana never titled, act as a supporting document where a certificate is missing a date or a price, and give both sides a receipt worth keeping.

This sheet is not the form. Download the blank State Form 44237 from the Indiana Bureau of Motor Vehicles at <https://forms.in.gov/Download.aspx?id=5521&f=/in-sf44237.pdf> — always take the current revision from the agency rather than a copy. Print this and keep it beside you while you complete theirs.

Every line, in the order you meet it

1	YOU	The identification number	Seventeen characters in the wide box at the head of the vehicle panel, then Year, Make and Model underneath. Watch out: Required if this is the primary ownership document, optional if it is only supporting a certificate that is missing something. Write it either way - it costs nothing and it settles which car the receipt is about.
2	YOU	Skip the vessel row entirely	Overall Length of Vessel, State of Principal Operation, Registration Number, Date of Issuance and the six propulsion ticks. Watch out: Every one of those is labelled watercraft only. A car with Propeller ticked is not a joke a branch associate has heard for the first time.
3	YOU	Purchase Price and Date of Sale	The two boxes in the SALE INFORMATION panel. Watch out: Match them to the certificate exactly. This form's usefulness is precisely that it can supply a date or a price the certificate is missing - which only works if the two agree wherever they overlap.
4	READ ONLY	The conveyance sentence	Nothing to fill in, but read it. You are certifying that the vehicle is not subject to any liens that are the responsibility of the seller. Watch out: If a lender was ever on this certificate, check the release is recorded before you sign under that line. A lien you paid off but nobody discharged is still your responsibility.
5	YOU	Sign, and print in the BMV's order	Signature and date, then the printed name in the order the box asks for - last, first, middle initial or company name. Watch out: A second row waits below for a joint owner. A company signs in the company's name, which is what the or company name at the end of the label is there for.
6	YOU	Your address	Number and street, city, state and ZIP, under the seller signatures. Watch out: This is one of the four things the BMV requires a bill of sale to contain if it is ever going to work as proof of ownership. The others are the purchaser's name, the vehicle description and your signature.
7	BUYER	The purchaser's half	Two signature rows, printed names, and an address block, under a second perjury affirmation. Watch out: For a boat there is a fourth line above it worth reading - the bill of sale may serve as a temporary certificate of number for a limited period. For a car it means nothing at all and grants no right to drive.

What gets this one rejected

- Using it in place of a certificate for a car. The BMV lists eight situations where a bill of sale is accepted as proof of ownership and every one of them is a vehicle that was never required to be titled.
- Using it to overwrite the certificate. The rule is explicit - a bill of sale can't be used to override information that has been written on the certificate of title, and where the two disagree the certificate is what is used.
- Leaving the identification number off when it is the primary ownership document. It is required in that case, and only optional where the form is supporting a certificate that is missing something.
- One seller signing where two are named. Two signature rows exist because a jointly owned vehicle needs both.
- Expecting it to be notarised. This form is not required to be notarized or signed under penalties for perjury as an ownership document - though the block still carries the perjury wording.
- Filling in the vessel row for a car. Length, propulsion and state of principal operation are marked watercraft only for a reason.
