Iowa · written against 411168 (06-25), issued under Iowa Code s. 321.50(5), discharge and cancellation of a </forms/iowa/411168-cancellation-of-security-interest/>

Your lender's form, not yours, and the one that decides whether your sale waits a day or a fortnight. Iowa gives a discharged lienholder two ways out: sign the cancellation on the face of the certificate, or issue this separate notarised release. Which one you get is their choice, and a buyer standing at a county treasurer's counter with a title that still shows an uncanceled lien and no release is sent home.

This sheet is not the form. Download the blank 411168 from the Iowa Department of Transportation, Motor Vehicle Division at <https://iowadot.forms.govos.com/f/CancellationOfSecurityInterest?f=411168.pdf> — always take the current revision from the agency rather than a copy. Print this and keep it beside you while you complete theirs.

Every line, in the order you meet it

1	LENDER	To County	The county treasurer the release is going to. Watch out: Normally the county that issued the title. If your lender asks you which one, the answer is on the front of the certificate.
2	LENDER	Title Number and Security Interest Number	Two identifiers. The security interest number is the lender's own reference on the Iowa record. Watch out: If the lender cannot find the security interest number, the county treasurer can read it off the record. It is not something you can supply.
3	LENDER	VIN	One full-width box for the vehicle identification number. Watch out: Check it against your own certificate when the release arrives. A release naming a different VIN is worth nothing at a counter.
4	LENDER	Owner's Name	Your name, as it appears on the title. Watch out: If you have changed name since the loan was taken out, tell the lender before they type it. A mismatch here is a question at the counter.
5	LENDER	Security Interest Holder's Name and address	The lender's name, street, city, state and zip. Watch out: Loans get sold. If the name on the front of your title is not the institution you have been paying, the release has to come from whoever holds it now.
6	LENDER	Date Cancelled	The date the security interest was actually discharged. Watch out: This is the date the fifteen-day forfeiture clock is measured against, alongside your written request.
7	LENDER	Signature of Authorized Representative, then the notary	The lender signs and the release is subscribed and sworn before a notary. Watch out: That notary block is the whole point of the form. An unsworn letter is not the separate notarized release form or letter the statute allows.

What gets this one rejected

- A seller filling it in. Every entry describes the lender's own act of discharging their own lien, and the signature line says Authorized Representative.
- An unnotarised release. The statute's alternative route is a separate, notarized release form or letter, and this form's notary block is why it counts as one.
- Sending it and keeping the title. The form's own instructions tell the lender to note the cancellation on the face of the title and attach a copy of this release to it as evidence.
- Sending it to the wrong place. The instruction is to forward it to the Department or a County Treasurer's Office, and then to forward the title on to the next security interest holder, or to whoever the owner has designated, or to the owner.
- Assuming it releases a second lien. It names one security interest number. A vehicle with two lenders on it needs two releases.
