The document that takes a lender off a Louisiana vehicle record, and it is not yours to file. The header explains itself: a termination statement is filed with the OMV by a secured party to the effect that he no longer claims a security interest in a titled motor vehicle. It matters to a seller because until the mortgage is terminated, the certificate of title is sitting in the lender's file rather than yours - R.S. 32:708(A) sends it to the lien holder of first rank when it is issued - and a car whose certificate you have never held is a car you cannot assign.

Every line, in the order you meet it

1	LENDER	Debtor (Owner's Name)	First column of the table, and it holds the registered owner's name rather than the lender's. Watch out: Read your own name here carefully when the copy comes back to you. A termination filed against a spelling that does not match the record is a termination that does not attach to your vehicle.
2	LENDER	Social Security Number	Third column, headed Social Security Number, and the lender fills it from its own loan file. Watch out: Do not supply this to anyone but the lender that already holds it. A form asking for it is not automatically entitled to it, and a lender terminating its own lien has the number already.
3	LENDER	Vehicle Identification Number	The widest column, at the right-hand end of each row, beside the title or file number. Watch out: The department matches the termination to the record on this and on the title number together. Check both against the certificate before you accept that the lien has gone.
4	LENDER	Name(s) of Secured Party (Lienholder)	The strip under the table: lender name, address and EIN, with the representative's signature box at its right. Watch out: The name here has to be the lender recorded on the record, not a servicer or a successor with a different trading name. Where a loan has been bought and sold, the OMV's rule is that a lienholder's name cannot simply be changed when processing a duplicate title.

What gets this one rejected

- Sent in by the owner. The statement is a declaration by the secured party that it no longer claims a security interest, and only the secured party can make it.
- A title or file number that does not match the vehicle identification number in the same row. The department matches on both.
- A row with a vehicle in it and no debtor name, or a debtor name with no vehicle. Each row is one termination and needs both halves.
- No signature of representative. There is one box for it at the foot of the sheet and nothing else on the form is an execution.
- Fewer fees than vehicles. The charge is per vehicle listed, not per statement.
