How to fill out Form 4441 — Statement of Trust

Missouri · written against Form 4441 (Rev 02-2019), issued under RSMo 301.190

sellmycarhub.com
</forms/missouri/4441-statement-of-trust/>

A one-page proof that a trust exists, that named people are its acting trustees, and that those trustees may sell a vehicle out of it. Missouri asks for this rather than for the trust deed, which is the useful part - a family trust document runs to dozens of pages and nobody wants it filed with a title application.

This sheet is not the form. Download the blank Form 4441 from the Missouri Department of Revenue at <https://dor.mo.gov/forms/4441.pdf> — always take the current revision from the agency rather than a copy. Print this and keep it beside you while you complete theirs.

Every line, in the order you meet it

| 1 | YOU | The trust's name and date      | The name exactly as the trust instrument gives it, and the date the trust was made. Watch out: The trust date is not the date you are filling this in. It is on the first page of the trust document, and it is part of how the trust is identified.                                                       |
| 2 | YOU | Identification number          | A federal identification number for the trust, or the Social Security number of the decedent. Watch out: A living revocable trust often has neither of its own and uses the grantor's number. After a death, the label on this line tells you which one the Department expects.                            |
| 3 | YOU | The grantor                    | Name, street address, city, state and ZIP of the person who created the trust. Watch out: The grantor and the trustee are frequently the same person while that person is alive, and frequently not afterwards. Fill in both blocks anyway.                                                                |
| 4 | YOU | The trustees currently serving | Up to seven names, under a heading that is about the present rather than about the original appointment. Watch out: Currently serving is the operative phrase. A named successor who has not yet taken office does not belong on this list.                                                                |
| 5 | YOU | Where and when it was executed | The county, or the city of St. Louis, and the date. Watch out: St. Louis city is not St. Louis county, and the form separates them because Missouri does. The distinction turns up on every Missouri form with a notary or an execution block.                                                             |
| 6 | YOU | The trustees sign              | The signature band at the foot, by the trustees named above, under both certifications. Watch out: No notary, and no witness. What gives this form its weight is the certification about unlimited authority directly above the signatures - which is a statement about what the trust deed actually says. |

What gets this one rejected

- A trustee who has signed but is not named in the list above. The certification is that the signers are the acting trustees, and the list is what identifies them.
- A trust whose terms do not in fact give unlimited authority to transfer vehicles. That is the substance of what is being certified, and it is not a formality - a trust that requires two trustees to act jointly is not one where a single trustee has unlimited authority.
- A missing trust date. It is how the Department tells one Marbury family trust from another, and it is not the date of this statement.
- Sending it alone. Printed at the foot: this form must be attached to your motor vehicle registration application.
- Expecting it to stay private. The acknowledgement above the signatures says the whole form is a public record under Chapter 610.
