South Carolina · written against MV-80A (Rev 12/18), issued under S.C. Code Ann. 56-3-390 and 56-19-340 </forms/south-carolina/mv80a-third-party-title-pick-up/>

For collecting a certificate you are not named on. South Carolina posts titles to the owner, or to the lienholder where a lien is recorded, and a branch will not hand one across the counter to somebody else without this. It matters to a seller in exactly one common case: a duplicate title has been applied for, the owner cannot get to a branch, and somebody else has to fetch it before the sale can go ahead.

This sheet is not the form. Download the blank MV-80A from the South Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles at <https://dmv.sc.gov/sites/scdmv/files/media/Forms/MV-80A.pdf> — always take the current revision from the agency rather than a copy. Print this and keep it beside you while you complete theirs.

Every line, in the order you meet it

1	YOU	Vehicle identification number	The VIN of the vehicle whose certificate is being collected. Watch out: It is the only thing on the form that identifies the car. No make, no year, no plate - so a transposed character means the branch cannot match it to a title at all.
2	YOU	I am an authorized agent for	The vehicle owner's name, and the relationship between the two of you in the cell beside it. Watch out: Write a real relationship - mother, son, neighbour, business partner. A branch reads that cell alongside the identification it is about to photocopy.
3	OTHER	Or, I am an authorized employee for	The alternative line, naming a company or an individual, used where the collector is acting for a business. Watch out: One route or the other, not both. A company also needs an MV-80 on file at the branch, and the DMV-use box below has a tick for exactly that.
4	YOU	Printed name and signature of vehicle owner	The owner authorising the collection, printed and signed, each with its own date. Watch out: This is the half that has to be done before the trip. Sending the collector with a blank owner block turns a ten-minute errand into two.
5	OTHER	Printed name and signature of third party	The collector, printed and signed, acknowledging that the certificate was handed over. Watch out: The wording is I have received this certificate of title from the DMV, so it is signed at the counter rather than at home.
6	OTHER	Bring photographic identification	The box at the foot is for a photocopy of the collector's driver's licence. Watch out: The original comes back after one photocopy. Where it is a South Carolina licence, the branch also checks the name and signature against its own record.

What gets this one rejected

- The owner's signature missing. Both halves of the form are signed - the owner authorising, and the third party acknowledging receipt.
- No relationship stated. The cell beside the owner's name asks how the two are connected, and a blank invites the question the form exists to answer.
- A company collecting on the individual route. A business sends someone as an authorized employee and files an MV-80 as well, which is the company-level authorisation the DMV-use box asks about.
- No photographic identification produced. The box at the foot exists to hold a copy of the collector's licence, and the branch takes one before releasing anything.
- Used where a lien is recorded. Where the certificate is going to a lienholder, the SCDMV's rule on the MV-80 is that the owner's authorization is not required for a lien holder to pick up the title.
- A VIN that does not match the title being collected. It is the only identifier on the page and the branch works from it.
