How to fill out RV-F1317001 — Odometer Disclosure Statement

Tennessee · written against RV-F1317001 (Rev 10-21), issued under 49 CFR Part 580 and Tenn. Code Ann. 39-14-132 </forms/tennessee/rvf1317001-odometer-disclosure-statement/>

The mileage half of the assignment, lifted off the back of the title and printed on a sheet of its own. A county clerk asks for it whenever the title's own block will not do the job - a reading corrected, a title with no space left, an out-of-state document that words the certification differently - and it is the one form in this whole set that an ordinary private seller of an ordinary car is genuinely likely to be handed.

This sheet is not the form. Download the blank RV-F1317001 from the Tennessee Department of Revenue at <https://www.tn.gov/content/dam/tn/revenue/documents/forms/titlereg/f1317001Fill-in.pdf> — always take the current revision from the agency rather than a copy. Print this and keep it beside you while you complete theirs.

Every line, in the order you meet it

1	YOU	I, _____	Your name printed on the opening rule, above the label SELLER OR TRANSFEROR'S NAME. Watch out: The name as the certificate of title prints it. If the title says one thing and your licence says another, the affidavit that reconciles them is a separate form and goes in with this one.
2	YOU	The odometer reading	The current reading in whole miles, in the box marked NO TENTHS beside statement one. Watch out: Read it off the dash on the day of the handover, not off a service invoice from March. The number here and the number on the back of the title have to agree.
3	YOU	Check one - and usually that means the first	Actual Mileage of the vehicle, no discrepancies. The other two are for a reading that has run past the odometer's limits, or one you cannot stand behind. Watch out: The second statement carries its own condition in brackets: check only if digits on odometer are impossible to determine. It is not a box for a car with a lot of miles on it.
4	YOU	Section B, the vehicle	Vehicle identification number, year, make and model, copied from the front of the certificate rather than from the car. Watch out: Copy it character by character and read it back. A single wrong character in the VIN is the most common reason a Tennessee application comes back, and the clerk cannot correct it for you.
5	YOU	Your address, signature and date	Street, city, state and ZIP, then sign on the rule and date it. Watch out: The date is the day of the transaction, and it should be the same date you wrote as the date of sale in the assignment. A different date on the two documents is a question waiting to be asked.
6	BUYER	The buyer's half	Their address, their printed name, their signature and their date, acknowledging the certification you have just made. Watch out: Hand them the pen at the kerb. Federal law entitles them to a copy of this, and photographing it before it leaves your hands takes five seconds.

What gets this one rejected

- A decimal point. The box says no tenths, and a reading with a fraction in it is not a reading the clerk can key.
- Two statements ticked. They are alternatives - a reading has either run past the odometer's mechanical limits or is not the actual mileage, and it cannot be both.
- Statement 3 ticked with nothing behind it. The form says in bold that the Odometer Discrepancy form must be completed, and the transaction sits until it turns up.
- A reading that does not match the one on the back of the title. Two documents about one handover disagreeing is exactly the discrepancy the clerk is looking for.
- Using it for a car that is exempt. A 2010 or older vehicle has nothing to disclose, and a disclosure filed anyway invites a question about why.
- Altering it. The last line on the page reads that any alterations or corrections may void this form.
