The form that moves a vehicle out of a default rather than out of a sale, and it is not a borrower's to sign. It is completed by the recorded lien holder or their authorised agent, certifying a lawful repossession and conveying the vehicle to whoever the lender has sold it to. A private seller meets it from the wrong end - as the person whose car has gone - and the reason it is worth reading is that it shows exactly what a lender has to swear to before your name comes off the record.

This sheet is not the form. Download the blank TC-569B from the Utah State Tax Commission, Motor Vehicle Division at <https://files.tax.utah.gov/tax/forms/current/tc-569b.pdf> — always take the current revision from the agency rather than a copy. Print this and keep it beside you while you complete theirs.

Every line, in the order you meet it

1	LENDER	Section 1, the vehicle	Year, make, model, identification number, body type, plate number and the state it was registered in. Watch out: The plate and the identification number both go in because the Division is ending one registration and starting another.
2	LENDER	Section 2, the former owner	The name and address of the person or company the vehicle was repossessed from. Watch out: This is the borrower. Leaving it out because they have moved does not make the statement easier to accept - it makes it unverifiable.
3	LENDER	Section 3, the lien holder and the date	The recorded lien holder's name and address, and the date the vehicle was repossessed. Watch out: The name has to match the lien recorded against the vehicle. A loan sold on to another institution needs the record updated before this statement will work.
4	LENDER	The certification	A signature under the perjury declaration that the repossession was lawful and made under default on the original agreement. Watch out: The same paragraph conveys the vehicle onward, so signing it is both a certification about the past and a transfer to whoever is named in Section 4.
5	LENDER	Section 4, the new owner	The name and address of whoever the vehicle is going to. Watch out: It is often the lender itself, pending a sale. Naming a buyer who has not yet been found leaves the Division issuing a title to somebody who is not there.

What gets this one rejected

- Signed by the borrower. Everything on the sheet is in the lender's voice and the certification names the recorded lien holder specifically.
- A lender that is not the one recorded against the vehicle. The certification is tied to the record, not to whoever currently holds the debt.
- No date of repossession. The date is what fixes the moment ownership stopped being the borrower's.
- Section 2 left blank because the borrower cannot be found. The statement has to name the person the vehicle was taken from - that is the whole of what it certifies.
- Used as a substitute for the certificate on an ordinary sale. It moves a vehicle out of a default; a private seller in a normal transaction endorses the title or signs a duplicate title application instead.
- Section 4 left empty. Without a new owner the statement conveys nothing and there is nobody for a title to issue to.
