Company name (if applicable)	Email address

Statement:

The certificate of title for this vehicle is printed in the name CORINNE A WHIPPLE-HANSEN. My Utah driver licence and my current identification are in the name CORINNE A WHIPPLE. These are the same person: I was married in 2009 and used the hyphenated name until my divorce in 2019, after which I resumed the name Whipple. I have signed the assignment on the title as Corinne A. Whipple. I attach a copy of my driver licence and of the divorce decree showing both names. The vehicle is being sold to Tomas E. Ballesteros of Spanish Fork on 11 August 2026 and nothing else about the transfer is in dispute.

Under penalties of perjury, I declare that to the best of my knowledge and belief, this statement is true, correct, and complete.

One page, one enormous box, and a perjury clause. It is the Division's general-purpose explanation form: a vehicle identified at the top, a person or company identified in the middle, and then a Statement field deep enough to swallow several paragraphs. A private seller reaches for it when something about the paperwork needs saying out loud - two spellings of one name, a signature written in the wrong lane, a purchase price that was recorded wrongly - and the Division also names it for a use nobody would guess: recording that a vehicle has been restored and modified with modern emissions control technology.

This sheet is not the form. Download the blank TC-569D from the Utah State Tax Commission, Motor Vehicle Division at <https://files.tax.utah.gov/tax/forms/current/tc-569d.pdf> — always take the current revision from the agency rather than a copy. Print this and keep it beside you while you complete theirs.

Every line, in the order you meet it

1	YOU	Section 1, the vehicle	Year, make, model, identification number, body type, plate number and the state it was last registered in. Watch out: Fill in the plate as well as the identification number. It is what lets a clerk pull the live record rather than searching for the vehicle.
2	YOU	Section 2, who is speaking	Your name and email, or the company name and its email if the statement is a business's. Watch out: One statement, one voice. If a seller and a buyer each need to explain something, that is two forms.
3	YOU	The Statement box	What happened, in as much detail as it takes. Watch out: Name the documents. A clerk holding a title that says one name and a licence that says another wants a sentence that quotes both, not a sentence that says they are the same.
4	YOU	Signature and date	One signature under the perjury declaration, with the date. Watch out: There is no notary line and none is wanted. What gives the statement its weight is the declaration printed above the signature.

What gets this one rejected

- Left unsigned. Without the signature the perjury declaration is unmade and the page is a note rather than a statement.
- Used to correct an odometer reading on a document that has already been signed. A false or altered mileage certification is not repaired by a second document explaining it.
- A statement about a vehicle it does not identify. The whole of Section 1 exists so a clerk can attach the explanation to a record.
- Two unrelated problems on one sheet. It is read as a single sworn statement, and a second issue deserves a second form.
- Vagueness. A clerk is reconciling two documents, so a statement that names what each of them says beats an apology or a general assurance.
- Signed by somebody the statement is not about. The name in Section 2 and the signature at the foot are the same person.
