How to fill out TC-891 — Odometer Disclosure Statement

sellmycarhub.com

Utah · written against TC-891 (Rev 6/26), issued under Utah Code 41-1a-902

</forms/utah/tc891-odometer-disclosure-statement/>

The standalone mileage certification, for the case where the ownership document has nowhere to put one. Utah's statute says that where a vehicle has not been titled, or the certificate of title does not contain a space for the information required, the written disclosure shall be executed as a separate document - and this is that separate document. It calls the two sides transferor and transferee rather than seller and buyer, because the obligation it carries is federal as well as Utah's.

This sheet is not the form. Download the blank TC-891 from the Utah State Tax Commission, Motor Vehicle Division at <https://files.tax.utah.gov/tax/forms/current/tc-891.pdf> — always take the current revision from the agency rather than a copy. Print this and keep it beside you while you complete theirs.

Every line, in the order you meet it

1	YOU	Section 1, transferor	Your printed name and address - the person giving up the vehicle, or the business that owns it. Watch out: If you are signing as somebody's agent, your name goes here and the authority travels with the packet. The statute puts the duty on the transferor, and an agent signing without authority is a false statement.
2	YOU	Section 2, the vehicle	Year, make, model, identification number and body type. Watch out: Body type is the field people leave blank. It is one of the five identifying details the statute requires, and the form asks for it because federal law does.
3	YOU	The reading	The mileage in whole numbers, with the miles or kilometers tick beside it. Watch out: Read it off the dashboard on the day you sign, not off a service record from March. This document is a certification of what the instrument shows now.
4	YOU	One certification of three	One tick: the actual mileage, a reading in excess of the odometer's mechanical limits, or a reading that is not the actual mileage. Watch out: In excess of mechanical limits means a five-digit instrument that has rolled over, not a car with a lot of miles on it. Choosing it wrongly puts a permanent flag on a vehicle that never earned one.
5	YOU	Transferor's signature and date	Your signature and the date of transfer. Watch out: There is no notary line and no witness line. What makes this document strong is that the transferee signs it in front of you, so do not post it.
6	BUYER	Section 4, transferee	The buyer's printed name, address, signature and date. Watch out: They are acknowledging receipt of your statement, which is a separate legal act from buying the car. If they will not sign it, the disclosure is not complete and neither of you has the copy the four-year rule expects.

What gets this one rejected

- Signed by the transferor and left for the transferee to sign later. The statute requires each transferee to acknowledge receipt by signing, and the Division's own guidance is that nobody should sign a blank statement on the assurance that it will be completed afterwards.
- One person signing as both transferor and transferee. Utah Code 41-1a-902 forbids it in terms, in a single sentence at the end of the section.
- More than one certification box ticked.
- A reading with tenths in it. The field says no tenths and the statute says not including tenths of miles or tenths of kilometers.
- Used on a vehicle over 16,000 pounds or twenty years old, and then contradicting the ownership document. The exemption means nothing has to be disclosed, not that a wrong figure is harmless once you have written one down.
- A body type left blank. It is one of the five identifying details the statute requires the statement to carry.
